24th July 2013

1. Can you explain, please, as to how, on 19th July 2013 at 7.30pm and after my having called for police to attend, while I am lawfully sitting quietly on private land in a car, the next thing I know is I am violently arrested, handcuffed behind my back and then dragged off to a police cell for the third time in a week?
2. Why, then, was there an hour and a half delay during which time I complained of the blatant irresponsibility of it until, eventually, police decided to have me breathalysed?
3. Why, then, were the results then concluded, at 9.00pm, with two zero readings despite the fact, at the time of my arrest, the police had recorded I was drinking from a bottle of red wine?

Statement of Truth

I,  of Road, Cardiff, confirm that on 19th July 2013 during lunch in a Penarth restaurant I saw Maurice Kirk consume a bottle of white wine entirely on his own.

The wine was in fact consumed during a period commencing after 2pm and in the presence of three other witnesses known to me.

Signed:

4. Why, then, having consumed more than a bottle of wine was there a delay and a negative result on a definitive test and no roadside breath test given?
5. Why, then, on three separate occasions, the South Wales Police had arrested me on the road side, following three positive breath tests but that the definitive tests at the police station had also produced three sets of zero results?
6. Clearly, there was criminal intent.
7. To whom do I turn in order for an independent investigation when previous complaints to the Independent Police Complaints Authority (IPCC), over such things as the police altering the colour of my WWI Lewis machine gun in order to try and fool a 2010 jury, my complaint was, in a most perfunctory manner, rubbish?

Yours sincerely,

Maurice J Kirk BVSc
